A WORD FROM THE DEAN

Depletion and disintegration of reality through continuous destruction of all the fundamental humanistic values that are being represented as a mere burden or unwanted baggage ruthlessly continue. The pluralism derived from monistic particularism, homogenisation of the particular, all the way to homogenisation and abdication of the very thought, sharpens the feeling that reality has lost any kind of direction/sense. The world that needs us only as functions reduced to the level of resources, wasted to the global labour flea market has its practical managers who would want to extrude the basic principles of humanities out of the historical horizon; yet they fail to see that the old questions what to do with humankind? and how to intellectually encompass such a dispersed reality? will befall us. Clearly, the answer can only come from the zone of humanities and social science, and arts.

Professor Muhamed Dželilović, PhD
Dean of the Faculty of Philosophy

HISTORY OF THE FACULTY

1950

● 6 departments

The Faculty of Philosophy was founded on 11 November 1950, pursuant to the Decree on the Faculty of Philosophy in Sarajevo, promulgated by the Government of the People's Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina on 14 February 1950

Sarajevo Canton assumed the right of the founder of the Faculty of Philosophy, University of Sarajevo.

The Faculty of Philosophy, University of Sarajevo, is a place for the meeting of different cultures, various opinions, the creative exchange of mature scholarship and new and innovative energies. Through academic openness, initiative and participation in public events, the faculty strives to be the centre of lifelong learning and the education of responsible and socially active citizens.

The teaching process forms future teachers, experts and scientists in the field of humanities and social sciences, ready to face the career challenges of the 21st century.

Academically diverse, the Faculty initiates and develops intercultural dialogue and opens horizons of understanding, accepting and respecting individuals in their uniqueness and diversity.

Apart from its main educational activities, the Faculty of Philosophy has from its foundation been a place of intense scientific and research engagement and numerous activities related to the development and promotion of philosophy, sociology, history of art, archaeology, pedagogy, psychology, philology, linguistics, applied linguistics, teaching methodology, literary history and librarianship.

Moreover, the faculty remains an institution of education and professional development and pedagogical education, as well as an institution for the recognition of diplomas, placement examination for first and foreign language testing, additional exams, translation, proofreading and publishing and for expert and consultancy services.

MISSION

Through its teaching process and scientific activities, the Faculty of Philosophy, University of Sarajevo, strives to educate creative and internationally competent experts in all fields of proficiency that are of interest throughout Bosnia and Herzegovina; experts able to undertake the demanding tasks of the modern economy in the European and global political, social, humanistic and cultural context.

Educating capable, creative and internationally competent experts in all areas of interest for the entire Bosnia and Herzegovina

VISION

Research, innovation and academic excellence

Educate the leaders of development of Bosnia and Herzegovina

The Faculty of Philosophy, University of Sarajevo, will, through a teaching process based on research, innovation and academic excellence, educate the leaders of development in Bosnia and Herzegovina and will, through scientific research, initiate new solutions and creative ideas, thus acting as a backbone for sustainable development in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

STUDYING

in accordance with the Bologna Principles

In the academic year 2005/2006, the Faculty of Philosophy started implementing studies in accordance with the Bologna principles (3+2), meaning that the ECTS (EUROPEAN CREDIT TRANSFER SYSTEM) grading system was introduced.

That has enabled recognition and comparison of the study programmes with distinguished European universities, as well as student mobility.

Introduction of studies compliant with the Bologna principles enabled a quality assurance system in higher education whereby students, together with staff, have been given a significant role in evaluation processes and improvement of the quality of studies

STUDENT MOBILITY

student exchange

The Faculty of Philosophy supports student mobility through different programmes:

ERASMUS+, CEEPUS, MEVLANA, DAAD, FULBRIGHT

Apart from being able to gain new experience and establish contacts with their international colleagues, students are also becoming part of the teaching process at foreign universities. These activities are exceptionally important for the development of an individual and the academic community alike.

Similarly, students from other universities have come every year to study at our faculty through study programmes as guest students, and their number continues to increase.

In this way, students are becoming part of the teaching process at foreign universities

RESEARCH ACTIVITIES

The Faculty of Philosophy has always been a driver of social and cultural processes, successfully implementing research activities for almost seven decades

The Faculty is host to various domestic and international conferences, seminars, roundtables and workshops. Students are an inseparable part of that strong chain of activities, contributing, as volunteers or through direct participation, to the development of science in our academic community, showing dedication and desire to share the knowledge they acquire during the course of their studies with their colleagues at all academic levels. Such student activities are opening new research perspectives in almost all disciplines of humanities and social sciences.

Visiting lectures by domestic and international experts, promotions of books and journals are also part of research activities at the Faculty. The Slovo and Desетка newsletters are an important result of young researchers' efforts at the Faculty, and many new perspectives are on the horizon.

TEACHER EDUCATION PROGRAMME

The Programme is designed for all candidates who have completed their doctoral or master's thesis, BA degree, college or post-secondary vocational education in any area of craftsmanship, science, engineering, art, service or commerce, and who teach or would like to teach vocational subjects at primary and secondary schools

The Department of Pedagogy of the Faculty of Philosophy, University of Sarajevo, conducts the Teacher Education Programme for all candidates who have completed their doctoral or master's thesis, BA degree, college or post-secondary vocational education in any area of craftsmanship, science, engineering, art, service or commerce, and who teach or would like to teach vocational subjects at primary and secondary schools. Upon completion of all the activities included in the curriculum, the candidates are awarded with certificates allowing them to work as teachers within the area of their respective vocational training. The programme is designed for the purpose of enabling experts in various fields to work in the teaching process, more specifically, to teach classes, to be homeroom teachers, and to successfully communicate with all participants of the educational process in schools (students, teachers, colleagues, management, etc.), but it does not provide competences for becoming a school counsellor, librarian, school principal, and the like.
